AUTUMN.

BY LONGFELLOW.

...with what glory comes and goes the year!—
...he Buds of spring—those beautiful harbingers
...f sunny skies and cloudless times—enjoy
...ife's newness, and earth's garniture spread out;
...nd when the silver habit of the clouds
...omes down upon the Autumn sun, and with
...softer gladness the old year takes up
...s bright inheritance of golden fruits,
...pomp and pageant fill the splendid scene.
There is a beautiful spirit breathing now
...s mellow richness on the cluster'd trees,
...nd, from a beaker full of richest dyes,
...ouring new glory on the Autumn woods,
...nd dipping in warm light the pillar'd clouds.
Morn, on the mountain, like a summer bird,
...ifts up her purple wing; and in the vales
...he gentle wind—a sweet and passionate wooer—
...isses the blushing leaf, and stirs up life—
Within the solemn woods of ash deep crimsoned,
And silver beech, and maple yellow-leaved—
Where Autumn, like a faint old man sits down
...y the way-side a-weary. Through the trees
The golden robin moves; the purple finch,
That on wild cherry and red cedar feeds,—
...winter bird,—comes with its plaintive whistle,
...nd pecks by the witch-hazel; whilst along
...oon cottage roofs the warbling blue bird sings;
...nd merrily, with oft-repeated stroke,
Sounds from the threshing floor the busy flail.
O, what a glory doth this world put on
For him who with a fervent heart, goes forth
Under the bright and glorious sky, and looks
On duties well performed and days well spent!
For him the wind, ay, and the yellow leaves,
Shall have a voice, and give him eloquent teachings.
He shall so hear the solemn hymn that Death
Has lifted up for all, that he shall go
To his long resting place without a tear.

A GOOD NIGHT,

BY MRS. H. J. LEWIS.

With the day's garments lay
Thine earthly cares away,
As an o'er-wearied child casts down its toys;
Bid the wild throbbing cease
That broke thy heart's deep peace
Amid life's surging waves of griefs and joys.

Take to thy darkened room
No shade of inward gloom,
Since angels gather there to guard thy rest;
And through the silent night
Gather from fields of light
Some healing herbs to bind unto thy breast.

From life's perplexed amairs,
Its memories, hopes, and prayers,
Thou wilt lie down to slumber sweet and deep;
But who can say for thee
Where shall the wakening be?
Will earth or heaven the future harvest reap.

Go, then, forgiving all,
Upon thy God to call,
Life's crown of thorns no longer on thy brow;
And, fanned by angels' wings,
Dream of all glorious things,
And with thy guides at heavenly altars bow.

Fresh as the morning dew
Begin thy life anew,
If such thy Father's will, upon the earth;
Pluck from the past its flowers
To garland future hours,
But leave the thorns in soil that gave them birth.

RECIPTS.

APPLE JAM.—The apples, which should be ripe and of the best eating sort, being pared and quartered, as for making apple jelly, are put into a pan with water enough to cover them, and boiled until they can be reduced to a mash. Then for each pound of the pared apples, a pound of sifted sugar is added, being sprinkled over the boiling mixture. Agitate it well until reduced to a jam; then put it into pots.—The above is the most simple way of making it; but to have it of the best possible clearness, make a thick syrup with three pounds of sugar to each pint of water, and clarify it with an egg. Then add one pint of this syrup for every three pounds of apples, and boil the jam to a proper thickness.

BELL PEPPER MANGOES.—Take green peppers, and take the seeds out carefully so as not to mangle them. Pour weak boiling brine over them, and let them stand four days, renewing the brine daily, boiling hot. Stuff them with chopped cabbage, seasoned with cloves, cinnamon and mace, sew them up nicely, and turn the same sharp vinegar over them three successive weeks, adding a little alum the last. Tomatoes, if green and small, are good pickled with the peppers.

BAKED APPLES.—The person who has eaten baked sweet apples with milk, needs no commendation of the article. But those who have tart apples only, may secure a delicious dish by the following process:—Pare them, if thick skinned, cut out the largest portion of the core from one end and place the fruit on well glazed earthen dishes or pans, with the cored end upwards, and the cavity filled with refined powdered sugar. Then bake them.

TO PRESERVE THE COLOR IN DRYING SEA-WEEDS.—Dissolve in two-thirds of a small vial of turpentine, two or three small lumps of gum mastic. Dissolve by placing it in a warm place. This solution must be carefully brushed over the sea-weed.—To Preserve the color in the Flowers of Dried Plants:—When they are flattened, and before their colors are injured, brush them over with a mixture composed of ten drops of vitriol to a table-spoonful of water. If the mixture be too strong the flowers will become red.

YOUNG TURNIPS when boiled in their skins and pared afterward, are said to be of better flavor and much less watery than when cooked in the usual way.

HYDER:

OR A STORY FOR YOUTHS,

The kings and princes of India had long been celebrated for their wealth and magnificence. The glittering gems, the countless rubies, the brilliant diamonds, the piles of gold and silver, which were said to be owned by these princes, had become an object of strong desire to their British visitors, and the hope of one day obtaining the mastery of a large part, if not the whole of India, led the British Government to take a course which should accomplish this object.

The province of Mysore is in the southern part of India, and is between the Carnatic on the east, and the Malabar coast on the west of the peninsula, and comprises a vast region of table-land, as it is called, which is about three thousand feet above the level of the sea. Its climate is healthy and delightful, its soil fertile, its people numerous, and its riches very great.

Two boys, Lhabaz and Hyder, were left with their mother, when Lhabaz was nine and Hyder only seven years of age, their father having been killed in battle. They were taken care of by their uncle, Ibraham, who took the boys and their mother to live with him at his house.

Hyder was a wild and careless boy. He spent his time in games, amusements, and hunting, and would not even learn to read or write, or spend his time in any useful work, or even join the army, which in many countries has always been considered the great object of ambition—the trade of killing men—of making war, of burning cities, of slaughtering the old and the young, and of laying waste the fertile fields and the fruitful groves.

When Hyder was twenty-seven years old, his brother at last induced him to join in one of his battles; and once in the ranks, he displayed the greatest bravery, skill, and presence of mind, which soon made him a noted and favorite general.

The people of India are soon attracted by the glory of a great military leader, and before long Hyder had quite a large army of his own, whom he taught to plunder, and who were obliged to bring him all the booty they obtained. I suppose we should call him a great robber in this country, for I do not see how he could have been a more wicked thief and plunderer. He made his troops lie in wait to rob convoys of grain, to steal horses, heads of cattle, and vehicles—everything they could take—and even the clothes from the people, the turbans from their heads, the earrings from the women; and so far did they go in their plundering and robbing, that they even took away the ornaments and trinkets from little children—everywhere, and from everybody, they lost no chance of carrying away whatever they could lay their hands upon. In this way Hyder in a short time had an army of 1,500 horse, and 5,000 foot soldiers, with elephants, camels, and all the trappings and riches of a chief of very high rank. All this was done by a great system of robbery and wrong. But Hyder did only what the great marauder, Napoleon, did some years after him, on a larger scale; for Napoleon said to the rulers of France "Give me men, and I will get you money; or give me money and I will get you men." This is war,—and war is only the action of a band of men who plunder and rob by law; one robber has a title or a crown, with a large army, and robs nations, while another commits his crimes alone. Do you think God does not look upon the actions of Hyder, and all others like him, with as much displeasure as upon any of those who commit such crimes at night in our streets?

Hyder saw that he was rich and powerful, and he though that he might make himself the ruler of Mysore. One of the young princes, who discovered this intention of Hyder, endeavored to prevent it; but Hyder found it out, and took the officers and many of the men of the prince, and after cutting off their ears and noses, drove them into the street.

Hyder was thus getting his prince into a great deal of trouble, and by stirring up the soldiers and creditors of the prince to ask him for their pay, Nunjeraj, the prince, was obliged to give up the government to Hyder, who had been all the while his chief minister. This was just what he wanted. But a man named Kunde Row, who was Hyder's chief adviser, turned traitor to him, and the robber was defeated in battle, and was almost on the point of being entirely disappointed in his hopes. Kunde Row was now made ruler, while Hyder sought refuge with Nunjeraj, the prince he had so wickedly treated. He told him how sorry he was for his baseness, and begged the prince to be his friend.—Nunjeraj, with great kindness, forgave him, and took him back into his protection.—But Hyder had some letters written, which were to be sent to some of the officers of Kunde Row, as though they were engaged in a plan to kill him and go over again to Hyder. These letters he had sealed with the seal of Nunjeraj, and in contrived his trick so that these letters should fall into the hands of Kunde Row, who thought they were real letters. Thinking that his officers and men were waiting a chance to kill him, he ran away, when Hyder easily defeated his army, and plundered them of all their baggage, stores, ammunition, tents, and elephants. He got hold of Kunde Row, and when the ladies and the rajah begged he should be kindly treated, Hyder said he should be treated like a paroquet; by which they thought he would treat him like a friend and favorite. But he showed them what he meant, for as soon as he got Kunde Row into his hands, he put him into an iron cage, where he lived many years, and where he died, Hyder allowing him only rice and milk for his support.

Hyder had a son, named Tippoo. This son was very different from his father. He was a great student, was very industrious, and spent all his spare time in writing and study. Hyder had commenced and finished a war with the English; and after one of his battles, he had let his army rest, while he spent the time in luxurious and riotous living. Hyder, who could command a hundred thousand men on the field, and who took city after city, and won battle after battle, was so foolish and weak that he could not command himself. He spent his time in eating and drinking, and was often intoxicated from the use of strong drink.

The great prince of Mysore, for he had made himself prince, was the slave of his passions, and the slave of strong drink.

Hyder had overcome many enemies, but was now invaded by one of the neighboring princes. Finding himself in a difficult position, surprised by his enemy, and being intoxicated, he saw his son, Tippoo, then eighteen years of age. He broke out in loud complaints and reproaches, and seizing upon a thick heavy cane, beat him so violently that the marks were on his back for a week. Tippoo, feeling how great an injustice had been done to him, and how great an indignity had been heaped upon him, in the face of the army, went to the head of his own division of the troops, and taking off his sword, his turban, and his splendid robe, he threw them to the ground; saying to his soldiers, "My father may fight his own battle, for I swear by Alla and his Prophet, that I draw no sword to-day." The army, we are told, were thus themselves; when they scattered in every direction, and the hostile forces gained immense booty. Tippoo put on the clothes of a poor man, and made his way to the chief city, where his father had arrived a short time before him.

Such is a short sketch of the life of Hyder, who lived to the age of eighty years, without learning to read or write, yet became one of the greatest sovereigns of India. Had he devoted the same genius and labor to the good of his people, his name would have been one of the brightest in history.

In the conduct of Hyder to his son we see what a terrible master over kings as well as people strong drink may become. It maddens the brain, takes away the senses, makes one believe his dearest friends, his wife and his children, are enemies, makes a man a monster, and leads to the most cruel and frightful crimes.—Kings who cannot be conquered by the greatest armies of the world, are made poor and helpless captives by a draught of strong drink. They who govern hundreds of thousands, even millions, of people, cannot govern their own passion for the poisonous bowl. Hyder lost a splendid occasion for conquering his enemies, by his having taken the fatal draught. He dethroned himself before his army, for he acted more like a madman than a king—and Tippoo, who might have led the army safely along on their course, left it, and in a desperate race for his life, Hyder had to regret his folly and his wrong.

The Indian's Idea of Paradise.

The idea which the Western Indians entertain of a future life is said to be this: As soon as the Indian threw off the flesh he would find himself standing on the bank of a river, the current running with great rapidity. Across this river was a slender pole, stripped of its bark, and lying close down to the surface of the water. The Indian who had lived a good life then sees a bright object on the other side: that was "Right." He would then, desirous of embracing the object he loved so well in the world, walk across the pole, unmindful of the raging torrent beneath his feet, arriving in safety at the opposite shore; and Right would then lead him among the mountains covered with gold and silver, into noble hunting grounds, where he would hunt for eternity. But, on the other hand, the man who followed "Wrong" all his life, when attempting to cross on the pole, after death, would fall into the foaming stream, and be swept down into a whirlpool surrounded by rock; there he would be carried round for centuries and centuries, until at last, he would be gradually sucked in towards the centre of the vortex, and finally engulfed in an immense bottomless hole. What became of the unfortunate sinner the Indians could not surmise further than that he lived forever.

The etiquette of Smoking.

Light your cigar first, and, after you have taken one or two wiffs, turn round and inquire, most politely, "If smoking is disagreeable to any one present?"

MISCELLANEOUS.

"TAKING THE STARCH OUT OF 'EM."

A lot of idlers stood upon the end of the pier which ran out into the Hudson river, in one of the small towns near Albany, a few days ago, amusing themselves with hurling stones into the broad stream, each vieing with the other in the endeavor to pitch a missle at the farthierest distance from the shore, when a tall, rugged built Vermonter, direct from the Green Hills, suddenly made his appearance in their midst, and for a while remained a quiet observer of their movements.

He was a brawny, strong looking Yankee, and was very decently clad. The efforts of the little party had been exhibited over and over again, when the stranger quietly picked up half a brick which lay near him, and giving it a jerk it fell into the water a long way beyond the line which had as yet been reached by the foremost of the crowd. At the conclusion of this feat a loud bravo went up from half a dozen voices around him.

It was a clear day in October, and the men, determined not to be outdone, renewed their attempts; but the Vermonter, without saying a sylable to any one, continued to pitch the pebbles far into the stream, which seemed to annoy one of them in a green jacket, the apparent leader of the gang, who declared he wouldn't be beaten by a "feller right straight out of the woods, no how;" and sliding up to the stranger he determined to make his acquaintance.

"Where do you come from neighbor?" inquired the other.

"Me? Wal, I hail from Vermont, jes naow, friend?"

"Ha'nt been in these parts long I reckon?"

"Wal—no, not edzactly yere—but up and daown, sorter."

"Yis—so I sposed."

"Yaas," continued the green 'un, carelessly, and seizing a big billet of wood, he twirled it over his head, and it landed several rods from the shore, in the water.

"You've a little strength in your arms, neighbor."

"Some 'punkin' in them flippers, stranger. Up in aour towns, more'n a month ago, I driv them are knuckles rite strut thru a board, more'n a ninch 'naff thick!"

"Haw—haw!" shouted his hearers, the man in the green jacket laughing loudest.

"May be you don't 'blieve it."

"Not much," answered the crowd.

"We ain't very green down here in York—we ain't," said the fellow in the green jacket; "we've been about, you see."

"Wal, jes' look yere, friend," continued the Vermonter, in the most plausible manner; "up in aour country, we've a purty big river, considering—Inynn river, its called, and maybe you've heard on it.—Wal, I hove a man clean across that river t'other day, and he came down fair and square on t'other side."

"Ha, ha, ha!" yelled his auditors.

"Wal, naow, yew may laff, but I ken deu it agin."

"Do what?" said green jacket, quickly.

"I ken take and heave you across that river yonder, jes like open and shet."

"Bet you ten dollars of it."

"Done!" said the Yankee; and drawing forth an X, (upon a broken down-east bank,) he covered the bragger's shinplaster.

"Ken yeu swim, feller?"

"Like a duck," said green jacket; and, without further parley, the Vermonter seized the knowing Yorker stoutly by the nape of the neck and the seat of his pants, jerked him from his foothold, and with an almost superhuman effort dashed the bully heels over head from the dock, some ten yards out into the Hudson river.

A terrible shout rang through the crowd, as he floundered into the water, and amid the jeers and screams of his companions, the ducked bully put back to the shore and scrambled up the bank, half frozen, by this sudden and involuntary cold bath.

"I'll take that ten spot, if you please," said the shivering loafer, advancing rapidly to the stake-holders. "You took us for green horns, eh! We'll show you how to do things down here in York,"—and the fellow claimed the twenty dollars.

"Wal, I reck'n yeou wunt take no ten spots jis' yit, cap'n.

"Why? You've lost the bet."

"Not edzactly. I didn't calkilate on deuin it the fust time—but I tell yeou I kin deu it"—and in spite of the loafer's utmost efforts to escape him he seized him by the scruff and the seat of his overhauls, and pitched him three yards further into the river than upon the first trial.

Again the bully returned, amid the shouts of his mates who enjoyed the sport immensely.

"Third time never fails," said the Yankee, stripping off his coat; "I kin deu it, I tell ye."

"Hold on!" cried the almost petrified victim,

"And I will deu it—if I try till to-morrow morning."

"I give it up!" shouted the sufferer, between his teeth, which now chattered like a mad badger's—"take the money."

The Vermonter very cooly pocketed the ten spot, and walked away.

GOOD MANNERS.

The good sound sense of the subjoined extract should recommend it to the attention of all those who are in any way entrusted with the care of youth:

"It is a matter of sound policy to cultivate the manners of our children. For gentle manners, and a kind and obliging address will do more to gather around us firm and enduring friends, than strength of mind and superiority of attainments. The manners to which we refer are the fruit of the cultivation of the mind and heart; the outpourings of benevolence, sincerity and inward purity. In all the departments and professions of life, we prefer, other things being equal to avail ourselves of the services of persons of agreeable and obliging manners. They are coin of great intrinsic value, and everywhere current. We may be allowed to glance at some of the features of good manners, such as we desire to have taught and practised in our schools, and such as all persons in well ordered society are bound to observe. The conventional rules of society are not arbitrary enactments, which any who choose have a right to set at defiance. They are essential to the maintenance and enjoyment of social intercourse, and the furtherance of its highest ends. Every person who enjoys the privileges and benefits of society is morally bound to observe its wholesome rules. Ill breeding is a sin against good morals, as well as a breach of social laws. No person has any right to act the clown in well ordered society, or to be unkind and offensive, setting at defiance the laws made for its convenience and comfort, by common consent. The leading feature of good manners is a scrupulous observance of all the rules that regulate social intercourse. Let the pupils of our schools be required to observe them in their intercourse with each other and their teachers, and upon all other occasions. Many of these rules, abstractedly considered, are little things; and yet in their influence upon the convenience and pleasure of social intercourse, they are great things. A particle of dust is a small thing, yet in the eye, which it irritates, it becomes great in its influence. So an infringement of the rules of good breeding may be of itself of no moment, but it often becomes important in the friction and irritation which it produces in social intercourse."

GERMAN LOVERS.

The universal prudery which so hampers a man in America, and makes him ignore half the facts of life, for fear of treading on some unknown delicate sensibility, is never seen in European circles. It is boldly assumed, what every one knows to be the fact, that both sexes are equally aware of a great variety of things; and where the allusion is natural, no one troubles himself about it. There were in our company, this evening, two who were invited as betrothed, and I was very much struck with their manners toward one another. I think in an Anglo-Saxon company, the fact would have been dropped out of view as much as possible, and certainly the slightest expression of their feelings would have been intensely dreaded by the parties. But here there was, the whole evening, an unconscious beautiful expression of affection and confidence, which really, I think, gladdened the whole company. You never thought of watching them for it, but you never thought of anything else with them. Love seemed to speak out as naturally from their tones, and glance and manner, as friendly feeling did with us. Nothing else would have seemed in place. It was above criticism—above surprise even—though if any other of the young bachelors were like myself, they retired with a sufficiently vivid appreciation of the woes of bachelordom. I often have observed this naturalness of expression among the Germans. It is more apparent in families, of course.—There are not in all my memories pictures so warm and glowing, as some of those families in North Germany; families where the look and language of affection were not blurred by that everlasting formalism, and coldness, and selfishness which hangs over our households; where love was without dissimulation, neither worn for duty nor worn for effect; where mutual kindness and self-sacrifice and affection had so long been, that the very air and aspect seemed to welcome and sun the stranger.

Mr. Brace's Home Life.

What the "Skeeter" said to the Sleepy Gentleman.

Hum-m!—hum, shut your eyes, sir, the noise you hear, is nought but flies, sir; a whim-m—w-h-j-m! don't be scared sir; go to sleep, your sheets are aired, sir.—Hum-m—a h-y-m-n it is, I'm singing, its music in your ears is ringing; I won't sting you, sting you, s-t-i-n-g! I'd scorn to do so mean a thing. A h-u-m-bug, it is not me that bites. Take care; don't slap, I never fight. Slap! whang! take care! you nearly hit me. 'Twas me, my friend, that bit ye. There! again! it comes to blows, you fool I didn't touch your nose. What in the world's the use of slapping—your own face when you should be napping; A-h-e-m! m-m, don't play the boy, I merely sung lullaby. A whang, again! There, there you go. No use! you can't hit me, you know. Now go to sleep. Aha! you're going. Now for a feast, old chap; I go in. All right! he's gone; I'll have my fill. Say, old sleepy, here's my BILL.

HISTORICAL.

A HISTORY OF

BRENTON'S NECK, FROM 1638,

WITH INCIDENTS RELATIVE TO THE SETTLEMENT OF NEWPORT, AND THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR.

BY ELIZABETH C. BRENTON, OF NEWPORT, R. I.

(Copyright Secured according to Law.)

In the spring of 1676, Jahliel Brenton was residing upon his Hammersmith estate, with his Brothers and Sisters; in the quiet enjoyment of domestic life; and in social intercourse with the friends of the deceased Father; making improvements around his home, endeared by the recollections of past days, and doubtless looking forward to the accomplishment of many plans formed for his future benefit and gratification; when unexpectedly the tranquility of the family was disturbed by the appalling accounts brought from the Main that the Indians had destroyed Pawtucket, and Seekonk; murdered many of their inhabitants and put to flight numbers who were seeking shelter, where ever a place of safety could be found, and in confusion landing upon the shores of Aquidneck, to escape the tomahawk, and the scalping knife.—And Providence was in a state of the greatest consternation and anxiety; fear ing hourly the vengance of the threatening foe, who had given the inhabitants to understand that the hatchet would not be buried until the pale faces were laid beneath its last stroke. The first impulse with which Jahliel was inspired by such distressing accounts, was a desire to afford succor to all within the power of his assistance. And while his Brothers stood motionless with horror, and his Sisters clung around him in tears of affright; his first resolve was to appoint them a place of safety, accordingly he hastened them on to Boston, where they were soon under the protection of their Brother-in-law Mr. John Pool. Jahleel still remaining in Newport, took the command of a small Schooner, and with a few volunteers armed with muskets, and fowling pieces, bent his course up Providence river. The Indians had already attacked the Town. Too long had the inhabitants relied upon the security afforded them through the influence of Roger Williams, but they were deceived. In defence of him every hatchet would have been raised; for gratitude is a marked trait in the Indian character. Their success however, in the destruction of Warwick and Seekonk, gave them the belief that the white people could be exterminated from the face of the country; and with this impression, they were all eager to pursue their work of destruction.

The habitation of Roger Williams, had been crowded to excess, the doors closed; and by the friends around him, every pursuasive measure used, to prevent him from pushing forward to the street, notwithstanding which, amidst their entreaties, he left his abode and sought the Sachems, whose reverence for his person caused a perfect suspension of their movements; and while they stood before him in profound silence, he used the strongest arguments to turn the current of their feelings, and adopt the measures he recommended. Vain attempts! They heard him with a haughty shake of the head, and gave him to understand he had better return to his house, where he would remain in safety. This conference though short, gave the inhabitants of the town time to escape to the shores, and wharves, where with their families, and a few effects, they took refuge, and crowded into boats, barges, ships, or any vessel under sail, rather trusting for safety to the raging elements, in a pitiless storm, than remain within the sound of the war-hoop, and the reach of a savage arm.

It was the 29th of March, a day by Jahleel never to be forgotten, when through the darkness of the night, he, with his little band of volunteers, ascended Providence River, heavy wind from the north-east opposed them; the sky was over-cast, as they proceeded, the swelling sea dashed fearfully against their little bark. Yet manfully they moved onward, and ere long, amidst the rolling surf in every direction, tho' scarcely discernable, were boats of various kinds, which had escaped from Providence, filled with men, women and children, driven tumultuously along, before the fury of the wind and tide. The rising billows each moment threatening to engulf them. And while the wailing of the mothers, and the cries of the helpless children sounded far over the waters, and mingled their notes of distress with the roaring of the winds and waves, the horror of the scene was heightened, by the certainty that Providence was on fire! The gales had increased, the heavy smoke ascended, and rolled in blackening columns to the skies, and added their dark masses to the dense and heavy clouds above. A blaze soon followed, which lighted up the firmament out-spread far and wide; disclosing the many boats scattered here and there, at the mercy of the driving storm, their occupants with feeble cries, and lifted hands, imploring succor from the larger boats. But amidst the tossing of seas, by the light afforded them by the fire, crowds, almost to pressure, were taken on board the schooner, and the little boats abandoned to the waves. And then came the rain! Not in showers, but as from buckets emptied on their devoted heads.—The flames in Providence died away, a heavy smoke told the work was finished. And as the schooner came rapidly before the wind, with the morning light the distressed passengers were safely landed in the town of Newport.

There is a legend attached to the burning of Providence, for the truth of which however, we cannot vouch. It was said that near the place now called India Point, stood a small building, occupied by a man (Lewis) with a wife and nine children.—He managed a freight boat; by means of which he supported his family. The landing for this boat was near his house, where also a cabin stood, occupied by an Indian man named Quanto, who had a wife and many children, and assisted Lewis in his business. The families lived upon very friendly terms. Lewis was remarked for his mildness, and Quanto for his noble bearing. The morning before Seekonk was destroyed, Quanto was called from his home. Why he left, was a secret. But requesting Lewis to take all his children to their grand-mother in Newport, and commanding his wife to remain in the cabin until his return, he darted out of sight.—The boat belonging to Lewis was just freighted for Newport, and it caused but a few moments delay to take Quanto's children on board; and before night they were safely lodged in the wigwam of their grandmother. Lewis however, feeling some alarm for the safety of his own family, left Newport immediately upon discharging his freight, and arrived in Providence in season to get his family and some of their effects on board his boat before night. Soon after the news that Seekonk was destroyed resounded through the town, and he hastened from his landing; and amidst the darkness of the night and a threatening storm, committed his family to the dangers of the seas rather than trust them to the fearful vengeance of the Indian hatchet and scalping-knife. Quietly they moved onward, until midnight. While the mother was lulling the infant in her arms, and the other small children were soundly sleeping upon the floor in the cabin, Lewis and his oldest boy were tending the boat, which bounded rapidly over the waves. They were just passing Warwick neck, when a canoe darted along side, throwing a rope, with a hook attached to the end, which caught upon the rigging, and a harsh voice called out: "Where are Quanto's children?" Lewis taken by surprise, replied, "they are safe." "Where?" responded the voice. "With me," replied Lewis. "Hand us two?" was the reply. Lewis knew full well to contradict himself and say they were not on board, would have been death to them all; therefore with his usual mildness, he replied. "Oh, yes!" and springing to the cabin he took from the floor two of his smaller boys, who lay in profound slumber, and wrapping them still closer within the buffalo-skin in which they were resting, while trembling beneath his load, he reached the canoe, and placed the children in the arms of the Indian, and quick as thought cut the rope from the hook entangled in the rigging. His son was now by his side, who eagerly exclaimed: "Father! father! why did you give my brothers to the Indians?" When at the same moment Lewis called at the top of his voice, "I have made a mistake, you have my children, but I will take care of Quanto's?" To this no reply was made; and as the canoe darted out of sight, the boy stood gazing at his father in silent wonder, while Lewis pale and shuddering with the thought of what might be his children's fate, descended to the cabin, and bathed in tears, revealed the truth to his wife, whose agony can better be imagined than described.—She, however, was a christian: and through the distress and terror of the night kept her husband calm, by her faith and patience—exhorting him in future to let truth be his guide, and trust to Providence for the result. The next day they landed in Newport, and saw the wife of Quanto. He had been killed at the commencement of the battle at Seekonk, and in his last moments received a promise from one of the Sachems, that he would see that his children were safe. And agreeable to his promise he went the same night to India Point, and finding the buildings deserted, proceeded to Warwick, and taking a canoe overtook Lewis, intending to kill his children if Quanto's were not to be found.—Quanto's wife upon her arrival in Newport finding her children all safe, and hearing of the fate of those of Lewis, from a deep sense of gratitude, travelled back to Providence in search of the two children of Lewis, and at last found them alone in the house of their father, where the Sachem had left them, and they were, through her means, restored to their parents. Both families remained in Newport until after the close of the war, when they all returned again to Providence, resuming their former business, Quanto's oldest son taking the place of his father.

An old toper, who lately attended an exhibition where a learned Professor caused several explosions to take place among cases produced from water, said: "You don't catch me putting much water in my liquor after this

CALIFORNIA NEWS.

The steamer Northern Light, from San Juan, arrived at New York on Tuesday.—She brings dates from San Francisco to Sept. 1st; and $1,350,000 on freight, and $500,000 in the hands of passengers. She connected with the Brother Jonathan, which brought down $1,500,000 on freight, and seven hundred passengers.

Large meetings had been held in San Francisco in favor of the immediate construction of the Pacific Railroad.

The bricklayers had struck for $12 a day, and the hod carriers for $6—and both were successful. A vast number of buildings were going up at a cost of $75,000 to $200,000 each. The taxable property in the city is assessed at nearly $29,000,000. Nearly half of the town of Sonora has been destroyed by fire. It commenced in Barnum's Hotel and swept down the whole north part of Main street. The business portion of the city is uninjured. Loss $40,000.

Strikes among the laborers still continue, and are generally successful.

Indian hostilities on Rouge river are unchecked.

The two men who murdered Mr. Beckwith, of Volcano Diggings, were arrested on board the Brother Jonathan on her trip down to the Isthmus. Their names are Dutch Harry and James Fox.

Emigrants from China and from across the Plains are arriving in great numbers.

Large shipments of quicksilver are being made to China.

The excess of the shipments of gold dust for 8 months, over 1852, amounts to nearly ten and a quarter millions.

The town of Kelsey's diggings, El Dorado Co., was burnt down on the night of the 25th August, loss $43,000. The principal loosers, were Messrs. Miller, Barker, Woodruff, and Johnson, J. T. Paul, Tremont house, Kossuth house, and Empire State house.

From various circumstances it is more than probable that the "Joaquin Rangers," whose supposed capture of the renowned bandit, Joaquin Murietta, created so much talk and commendation lately, were mistaken in their man, and decapitated an unlucky person who went out with a party from Los Angelos to catch wild horses.—But as they wanted a human head for exhibition, and to secure the reward offered for Joaquin, the one they have will answer as well as another.

LAUNCH OF THE GREAT REPUBLIC.—This mangnificent ship, the largest clipper in the world, will be launched from the ship yard of Mr. D. McKay, at East Boston on the 4th of October. Her hull is now nearly finished, and is daily inspected by visitors from all parts of the country—While in the course of construction, she has been visited by over 30,000 persons, during working hours, and by perhaps as many more on Sundays and holidays.—She is a wonderful vessel, and every time we look at her, we can but admire the genius and skill which have produced her.—She is between 6,000 and 7,000 tons stowage capacity, and is the longest and sharpest vessel ever built in this country. She is 352 feet long, 53 feet wide, and 33 feet deep, with four decks, and is of a moddle so perfectly beautiful, as to seem perfection itself. Mr. McKay, her owner and designer, intends to sail her himself, that is to transact her business; and she will be commanded by his brother, formely captain of the Sovereign of the Seas." We advise those who have not seen her to pay her a visit, before she is launched. When fitted out she will proceed to New York, and then load for San Francisco.—Boston Atlas.

THE REVOLUTION IN CHINA.—We have before us a letter, not designed for publication, written by an American and Christian gentleman long resident in China, principally at Macao, and favored with rare opportunities for acquaintance with the social and national character of the Chinese, which thus speaks of the insurgent movement in the Celestial Empire:—"The civil war in China is another mysterious feature in the politics of the East, with respect to its beneficial results on the well-being of the Chinese. Thus far its consequences have been disastrous and bad in every point of view, and worse seems likely to result, whichever party prevails. The Empire is weakened by the want of specie, long ago paid out for opium, and the Government is crippled by the want of confidence in its ability and resources among the masses of the people. Hereabout the insurgents have no great number of decided adherents, yet the appearance of even a small army would nearly overthrow the constituted authorities, owing to the prestige they have obtained. Foreigners generally wish them success.

CURIOUS STORY.—On Tuesday evening last, a marine-looking individual presented himself at the United States Marshal's office, stating that he had been referred there by the Commandant of the Navy Yard at Brooklyn, and related a story, the gist of which is that he was lately informed by a pirate on his death-bed that he had served on board a pirating vessel which was sunk and abandoned upwards of twenty years ago at the Balize, (at the mouth of the Mississippi river), with twenty-two tons of silver and gold coin on board, besides other articles of great value; that this treasure had never been disturbed, and the exact locality was pointed out by the dying man. The marine millionaire in expectancy had asked at the Navy Yard for a ship of war to enable him prosecute his work of recovery which, however, he was denied. As a matter of course, the United States authorities did not feel inclined to convert the arm of public defence or revenue to any private speculation, and therefore the fortune-hunter left with the determination of seeking assistance elsewhere.—New York Herald.

GOLD IN SIBERIA.—A letter from Irkutsk (Siberia) of July 1, in the Journal de St. Petersburg, says:—"Siberia was long surnamed the land of gold, but it was thought that it had obtained that appellation from being so rich in furs. At present there are clear proofs that the term may be taken in its literal sense, as new gold-fields have been discovered there.—In 1851, some rich spots were found near the mouth of the river Olekma, in a district where the foot of man had never trod. Gold-searchers then tried the river Lena, and not less than ten rich placers were discovered on the right bank of the river, between spots where its confluents, the Vitime and the Olekma, fall into it.—Thousands of workmen are there at present, and provisions for their support are brought from Irkutsk. These provisions are sold at exceedingly high prices.

THE MYSTERIES OF COOKERY.—It is said that some of the great cooks of ancient Greece carried their art to such perfection, that they were able to serve up a whole pig, boiled on one side and roasted on the other, and stuffed besides, though without visible mark of the knife upon it. The inventor of this feat was cruel enough to keep the process secret for a whole year.—At length it was revealed that he had bled the animal to death by a very small wound under the shoulder, by which he had also extracted the entrails piecemeal; that he had forced the stuffing down the throat and that, by means of barley paste, he had prevented the roasting on one side, having boiled it afterwards. It is said also of these Greek cooks, that by saltings, picklings, and fryings, they could actually make a turnip pass for any kind of fish or flesh they chose.

ADVANTAGES OF THE STEAMBOAT LAW.—A correspondent of the Scientific American says: If you will look at the facts in the case, taking for example the Mississippi river and all its tributaries, I believe you will find that from the 1st of January, when the law took effect, to this time, there has not been the loss of life of a single passenger, or even an injury to one, upon all those waters, whilst in the seven months of 1852, corresponding to these, there were over 500 persons killed. Taking the explosions and accidents elsewhere in the United States for the same period, they scarcely amount to anything in comparison with the loss before.

GOV STEVENS' SURVEYING PARTY.—A letter from a gentleman attached to Gov. Stevens' surveying expedition, dated Fort Union, Aug 6th, states that the whole party have arrived there, having greater part of the way made three lines of survey for the Pacific railroad. A few days previous an engineer soldier, named White, accidentally shot himself, dying instantly.—With this exception, everything had gone on safely. The party would start on the 8th for Fort Benton, and thence to the mountains.

GOLD IN MEXICO.—Advices have been received by his Excellency, Gen. Almonte, the Mexican Minister, that gold in considerable quantities had been discovered on the Rio Mescala, which river, it will be remembered, is on the route of the Mexican Ocean Mail and Inland Company.—Thousands of Mexicans are flocking thither and the result will doubtless be to give a new impulse to national and foreign enterprise.—Washington Union, 22d.

SALE OF DEXTER MARSH'S MUSEUM.—The sale of the Museum of Dexter Marsh, deceased, took place on Wednesday and Thursday last. The sale was attended by gentleman representing societies from various points abroad, and the best specimens were sold under active competition at prices largely exceeding the apprisals. Among those present and engaged in the bidding, were Pesident Hitchcock of Amherst, Dr. Deane of Greenfield, Messrs. Alger and Bouve of Boston, Gebhardt of Albany, W. C. Redfield of New York, Cobb of Portland, and Chase of Natchez. The largest and finest slab of sandstone, presenting a number of lines of distinct tracks, appraised $350, was struck off to Mr. Alger at $375. The corresponding slab of less size, and exhibiting similar tracks in relief, appraised at $150, was struck off to President Hitchcock at $160. One stone appraised at $5, was run up to $26. The principal competitoin appeared to be between representatives of the Boston Society of Natural History on the one hand, those of Portland, Albany, and New York on the other. A fine fossil fish impression, found in Sunderland, and appraised at $25, was struck off to Mr. Cobb for $51. Another stone with well-defined traces of tracks, appraised at $30, was run up, between Mr. Alger and Mr. Cobb, to $87; and finally struck off to the former. The stone appraised at $75 and another at 25, were struck off to Mr. Bouve at $130 and $68, respectively. There was a single impression of an enormous foot, apparently of a bird five or six times the size of an ostrich, which was appraised at $25, two similar and connected impressions having heretofore been sold to the British Museum for $25. This, after active bidding between Mr. Chase and Mr. Alger, became the property of Mr. Alger at $100.

The Museum was appraised at about $2,500. The sales amounted to about $3 000.

A SELF-MADE MAN.—Hon. Andrew Johnson, who has been elected Governor of Tennessee, actually commenced life in the almshouse of Wake county, N. C., where he remained until his eighth year, when he was apprenticed to a tailor in Raleigh. The Milwaukee Wisconsin says:

"His master, if he failed to have him taught even the rudiments of an English education, at least trained him up to love the truth, work hard and be straight forward in his dealings with every one. When his apprenticeship was up, Mr. Johnson married a woman after his own heart, who knew enough from books to be able to aid him in mastering the arts of reading and writing.

On marrying, just after he came of age, he emigrated to Eastern Tennessee, trudging bare-footed, it is said, with his faithful helpmate by his side, and his pack on his back. Assiduous labor at the tailor's trade placed him at the end of ten years in comfortable circumstances, for his position in that region; and by that time, by dint of hard study during his leisure moments, he had come to be actually a man of considerable general information.

Being good on the stump he was sent consecutively for a term of two years to both branches of the Legislature. From thence he was transferred to the House of Representatives of the United States, where he served six years."

FACTS ABOUT THE FEVER.—Few months ago a merchant of this city took to his home and heart a youthful bride, and went to reside in the Fourth District. Wishing to live in privacy, he engaged only one servant—fresh green girl, from the Emerald Isle. She took the fever, and in a few days died. Another was hired, and shared the same fate. A third and a fourth filled the vacancy in the household, and followed in succession the sweeping summons of the same fell destroyer. Following the impulse of a natural dread, the merchant went to Mobile to avoid the destructive visitation of the scourge, and the next day buried his young and beautiful bride. Disgusted with a home where nought but empty chambers served to call up the memories of departed joys, he returned to sell out his household, determined to leave a locality to him so suggestive of sorrow. He died the next day. When our informant visited the premises, there was but one living creature there. It was a solitary parrot, swinging in its lonely cage, and waiting unwittingly its deserted one. Alas, poor Pol!

MRS. PARTINGTON ON DISEASES.—"Diseases is very various," said Mrs. Partington, as she returned from a street conversation with Dr. Bolds. "The doctor tells me hat poor old Mrs. Haze has got two buckles on her lungs! It is dreadful to think of, I declare. The diseases is so various! One day we hear of people's dying of hermitage of the lungs, another of brown creatures; here they tell us of the elementary canal being out of order, there about the tenor of the throat; here we hear of the neurology in the head, and there of an embargo; on one side of us we hear of men being killed by getting a pound of beef in his sarcophagus, and there another kills himself by discovering his jocular vein. Things change so, that I declare that I don't know how to subscribe for any disease now-a-days. New names and nostrils take the place of the old, and I might as well throw my old yarb bag away."

INSANE THROUGH EXCESSIVE JOY.—A writer describing the Lunatic Asylum at Blackwell's Island, says: "Here is a woman whom joy has deprived of her senses. Her husband and child were on board a vessel which was wrecked. Going down to the shore every day, as if with the wish of being nearer the beloved objects that lay buried beneath the sea, suddenly she beheld them landing from a vessel which had picked them up and saved them. An overwhelming flood of joy pervaded her bosom, and then reason was gone forever. She never has known them since, but sits on what she thinks the same rock, where she used to bewail their fate, wringing her hands and moaning most pitiously while every week the husband and son come and gaze on her dear face, in hope to rouse one gleam of memory, but in vain.

THE SHADY SIDE.—The Congregational (N. H.) Journal says—"We were lately informed that a worthy but poor minister, who was unable to keep a horse, found it desirable to exchange on a certain Sabbath, with another minister, twenty-five miles distant. He solicited of his church members the use of a horse, but being uniformly denied, he set off and travelled the distance on foot—fifty weary miles, over hills and valleys, and under a burning sun.—And yet the exchange was to gratify these church members with the service of a favorite minister in administering the communion! Let Mrs. Hubbell add this fact to the next edition of "Shady Side."

LICE ON COWS.—A correspondent of the Southern Planter say: 'I saw in some agricultural work that the water in which Irish potatoes have been boiled, if applied to cows, would kill lice upon them.' I tried it several times with signal success, the vermin all taking their departure.

LIBERIA.—The following is an extract from a letter written by John B. Jordan, an intelligent colored man from Cincinnati, who has emigrated to Liberia. The letter was written to his friends in Cincinnati, and was published in the Times of that city, from the original:

"My opinion of this country is unchanged. Vegetation is extraordinary.—Cane is growing now on the St. Paul river, in fine style, that was planted seven years ago. Coffee and cotton, both good, grow wild. You can grow almost anything under the sun, and it will thrive here as well as elsewhere, except wheat. I have never seen such a country for making money.—Enterprise here is slack, and I improve upon it. Capital is small here, but brains will swell it if industry assist it. There is room for more men, and Gaines and Wilcox can have the fever, as I did for about three weeks, every week or so, and then not eternally damn the country. Taggart would make a fortune here with some little assistance. 'Go-ahead' is a man who will live and thrive here, but 'Can't' will starve.

Provisions are nearly always worth 75 per cent. on cost in the United States, and dry goods from 60 to 100 per cent.

The population of Monrovia is about 1800, and that of the republic, of Americans, about 8500. The trade, however, is not confined to them, except for provisions and dry goods. It is the natives who people in thousands the immense territory back of the American settlements. Their custom is worth over a million of dollars annually, and the supply of that is what draws to us the many foreign vessels exceeding twenty in all, which navigate our coast at all seasons, the dry and sultry, and the humid and rainy, for the palm oil and camwood, which the native either brings in his canoe or lugs on his back through a path of the size of a hog path in the United States, for forty to one hundred miles, from the interior. This trade is annually increasing, and foreigners are competing with us for it. We have, however, prior claims, and the native is sufficiently alive to his interest to give us a preference in his trade. To learn this trade will take but a short time to some, and they who follow it will reap wealth.

Young men without capital or business qualification need not come here, unless they are mechanics."

REMARKABLE VOYAGE OF A COW.—A gentleman of this city purchased a Cow, on Thursday, at Kittery, and drove her home leaving her calf behind. In the afternoon she escaped from the pasture and made her way to the bridge, but not being permitted to cross without toll, it appears that sometime in the evening she took to the river to swim across. Not having power to stem the rapid tide of this Piscataqua, she drifted against the bridge and got entangled in such a manner that she could not escape, and yet was preserved from drowning. Thus she remained all night, and until some humane men came to her relief in the morning, with a boat, and towed her ashore. She appears likely to do well. Here in this bereaved and expatriated animal, was maternal affection, anxiety, courage, energy—almost reason, but not quite—for that might have suggested caution. Yet she showed half a dozen of those traits which are among the most admirable in humane beings.

THE RICHEST MINE.—The manure applied to the soil of England amounts to three hundred millions of dollars; being more than the value of its whole foreign commerce, and yet the grateful soils yields back with interest all that is lavished upon it.—And so it would be here, if we would only trust the soil with any portion of our capital. But this we rarely do. A farmer who has made any money spends it not in his business, but in some other occupation.—He buys more land when he ought to buy more manure, or he puts out his money in some joint stock company to convert sunshine into moonshine. Rely upon it, our richest mine is the barn-yard, and whatever temptation stock or shares may offer, the best investment for a farmer is live stock and ploughshares.

A FIENDISH ACT.—A most villainous attempt was made, yesterday morning, to throw off the the track the early train of cars running from Bordentown to Amboy, known as Deacon's Line. A large iron rail was placed diagonally upon the track at the end of the curve, about 100 yards from the Crosswicks bridge. The engine struck the rail and carried it some distance before the train could be stopped. Had the cars been thrown off, they undoubtedly would have been precipitated down an embankment of about 40 feet and dashed to pieces. The perpetrator of so fiendish an outrage merits nothing less than a halter, and we hope he may be detected and dealt with in the severest manner possible.

WATER-PROOF BOOTS.—Apply, as much and as hot as the leather will bear, a mixture of two parts tallow and one part rosin. Then dissolve 1 oz. of beeswax in 2 oz. of spirits of turpentine, to which add a teaspoonful of ivory-black. Warm the boots when you apply the first, top and bottom; the second should be applied cold and rubbed with the hands on the uppers only.—Cork soles are the best protection against cold or damp feet. They may be fixed between the outer and inner soles when the boots are made, or worn loose inside.—Cork is so bad a conductor of heat, that with it in boots, the feet are warm on the coldest stone floor.

GOOD NEWS FOR HAZEL EYED GIRLS.—Major Noah says that a hazel eye inspires at first a platonic sentiment, which gradually and surely expands, and emerges into love founded as the Rock of Gibraltar. A woman with a hazel eye never slopes from her husband, never pouts at home, never finds fault, never talks too much or too little, always is an entertaining, intellectual agreeable and lovely creature. We never knew but one uninteresting and unamiable woman with a hazel eye, and she had a nose which looked as the Yankee says, like the little end of nothing whittled down to a pint.

A project is entertained on the Cape to make a passage from the Sound to Salt Water Pond, a distance of about 700 feet in Harwich port, so that fishing vessels may winter there instead of being sent away to other ports for safety during the winter season. About 120 vessels are annually sent away from Cape Cod at an expense of about $100 each, for want of a safe harbor.—N. B. Standard.

MONKS IN THE WEST.—Some 1600 acres of land have recently been purchased in Iowa, on which a colony of monks has settled. Among their peculier habits, says a contemporary, may be mentioned that they never mingle with the world; and when they put on a new suit of clothes, that suit is kept on, sleeping or waking, till it falls off, or becomes unfit for wear.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM.—It will be recollected that we copied some time since extracts from a fanatical and intolerant Roman Catholic paper, the Shepherd of the Valley, published at St Louis, in which the policy of the middle ages of propogating the Roman Catholic religion by means of the inquisition, the torture and the faggot was excused, and it was said that "if the Catholics ever gain the ascendancy here, as they certainly will, religious freedom in this country is at an end." It was stated at the time that this intolerant sheet was published under the auspices of the Catholic Bishop of St. Louis. This, however was denied by the 'Pittsburgh Catholic, which paper endeavored to make out not only that the Archbishop of St. Louis disapproved of the sentiments excepted to, but that they were contrary to the general policy of the church, although neither a part of, nor opposed to the doctrines. It turns out now, however, that the Archbishop of St. Louis, not only does not disapprove of the intolerance exhibited in the columns of the Shepherd, but has on the contrary, given his official sanction to the paper with all the bitterness of its bigotry and intolerance upon its head. The following is the Archbishop's card, as it appears in the order of its persecutors:

The Shepherd of the Valley is published with my approbation, and I recommend it to the support of this Diocese. † PETER RICHARDS.

The sanction of this sheet, with all its intolerance, by so high an official in the Romish Church, furnishes food for thought, and should lead the public to examine the aims and tendencies and to watch the movements of a sect which threatens to abolish religious freedom.

A BALLOON ASCENSION IN CALIFORNIA.—Our San Francisco papers give the following particulars of a balloon ascension by a lad of 16 years of age;

"A boy named Joseph Gates, aged 16 made a remarkable balloon ascension from Oakland, opposite San Francisco, on the 28th. The balloon was of the largest size, but was not sufficiently inflated and would not rise with the æronaut. The car was then taken off and a small board lashed across the hoop. Upon this the æronaut took his seat, but he was too heavy. The crowd then called for a boy, and Gates, who was near, peddling fruit, gave his basket to his partner and jumped on board; and without any provisions or clothing more than his ordinary suit, he rose, before the æronaut could give him any instructions, more than to pull the rope when he wished to come down. The boy sat upon the hoop, (which was only an inch square,) and leaned back upon the cords. When up about half a mile, he pulled the cord and it broke. The balloon flew rapidly to the northeast, at a height of about two and a half miles. The boy retained his presence of mind, took out his knife, opened it, put it in his teeth, and tried to climb the cords for the purpose of cutting the balloon; but the cords were only a quarter of an inch in thickness, and he could not climb them. The gas finally escaped so that the balloon descended about 16 miles from Benicia, in Suisun Valley, and 50 miles in a direct line from the starting point."

The charming Queen of Sardinia (who is passing the summer with her family on the coast of the Mediterranean,) visited the flag ship Cumberland at Spezzia last month. The Queen, herself a daughter of Austria, is reputed to be the most beautiful, as she is one of the most amiable and worthy, of the female sovereigns of Europe; and her reception by the officers and crew was truly a fit tribute of American gallantry in such a character. She visited every part of the vessel, which it is scarcely necessary to say was in fine condition carefully observing all its appointments, and scanning with a woman's critical eye, the perfect neatness, order and propriety of them all. The royal suite was conducted through the visit, of course, by Com. Stringham, and escorted ashore by the ship's boats under the customary salutes. The U. S. ship St. Louis fortunately arrived from Smyrna in the morning, and Capt. Ingraham and his officers were cordially welcomed, and participated in the dance.—About a hundred ladies graced the occasion, including Mrs. Wise, a daughter of Mr. Everett, and several other wives of the officers.

DEAD LETTERS.—A correspondent of the Baltimore Sun says:—The General Post Office on the 22d instant transmitted to the post office at Bremen 6,901 dead letters for the several German States.—These letters were duly received here, and placed for delivery in our respective post offices, then regularly advertised; but from the absence of the persons the letters were intended for, their omission to apply for them, or other causes having failed to reach the parties superscribed, they are now returned to the place from whence they came. Letters received in the closed mails from Prussia are now being mailed. About 475 bushels of dead letters (American) have been opened in the office during the present quarter.

MORALS IN ENGLAND.—The gaming clubs and female raffling societies, held at public houses, beer shops, and private houses, at Bury and Heywood, have increased to an alarming extent. At one of these clubs at Bury, the number of members entered in one week at 1s. each was 15,000, and the average number during the last six weeks has been upwards of 13,000. The raffling societies are generally held at private houses, and are mostly supported by females, who pay 6*d* each,—The gaming clubs, or, as they are termed, draws or sweepstakes, have become so attractive, that many youths have been known to expend their weekly wages in buying chances.—Manchester Courier.

INCREASE OF POPULATION IN SAN FRANCISCO.—The total number of passengers by sea that arrived at San Francisco, from January 1st to August 27th, was 26,722, of whom 21,886 were males, 4138 females, and 698 children. The total number that left within the same time was 18,038, nearly all males. The addition to our population seaward amounted, therefore, during the first eight months of the present year, to only 8639. From July 27 to August 27, the total arrivals were 1435; the departures 1932; showing a falling off in the last month of 497.

A STRONG MINDED WOMAN.—The Salem (N. J.) Press is our authority for the following "Bloomer" story:—

"A farmer in this town hired last spring a young Irishman to work upon his farm.—He labored faithfully and gave good satisfaction, when about a week ago the discovery was made that this faithful hand was a lass of the Emerald Isle. She could plow, hoe corn, swing a scythe, rake, load, and pitch hay with the best of them; but she was not very good at the cradle."

Kentucky papers report white frosts in that state. The corn and vegetables were affected, and fears were entertained for the tobacco crop.

Newport Mercury.

SATURDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 1, 1853.

While in Providence last week our attention was drawn to Appleton's Art Gallery, under the management of Mr. S. Coleman, where we spent a half hour most agreeably in examining the many specimens of engravings, medallions, and pictures there collected.

Until recently, fine and elaborate engravings on steel have commanded prices that put them beyond the reach of all but the few; and this would have continued to be the case but for the discovery of a complete and expeditious mode of multiplying the plates by transfers to copper. Mr. Appleton commands that discovery and is now furnishing the public with the choicest specimens of art at prices generally asked for an ordinary lithograph. It is this improvement and the reduction of prices of a really meritorious article that is to do so much for the spread of a more refined taste in our country. It will be remembered by our readers that we recommended but a short time since the issuing of prints, elaborate in their finish but cheap in price, to free the market of the trash now imposed upon the public; but we did not at that time suppose that so much had already been accomplished towards securing the same end, or that we should very soon have five dollar prints offered to us for about a dollar. Such, however, is the case; Mr. Coleman having made arrangements with Messrs. B. H. Tisdale & Son, to furnish them with a fine collection, all of which may now be seen at their store.

At the Art Gallery in Providence we noticed several very beautiful landscapes, painted by a son of Mr. Coleman; one of which, a large composition, an early morning, we examined very carefully while it hung on the walls of the exhibition hall at the Fair, and found much in it to admire. It is rich in color, executed with much freedom, and should find a ready purchaser. There were other specimens in the room, of smaller size and from the same hand, worthy of the attention of those who would adorn their rooms.

Since our last we have had further arrivals from California, bringing the usual record of the discoveries of gold in large quantities; the fluctuations of trade, successful agricultural speculations, increase of crime and political intrigues, &c., &c. The yield of gold is immense. The specie list, chiefly in gold dust, of the Northern Light, was one million eight hundred and forty-five thousand dollars, besides a large amount in the hands of passengers. Where does all this gold go to? We see but little in circulation, certainly not more than we did ten years ago. The amount deposited at the Philadelphia Mint in July for coinage, was $3,491,000, and the amount coined at that mint for the same time was nearly four and a half millions.—To this must be added the amount coined at the New Orleans Mint for the same period. The whole amount of gold manifested and shipped from San Francisco in 1851, was thirty-four and a half millions, and during the last year it was nearly forty-six millions, thirty-nine millions of which was shipped directly to New York. These immense amounts have been pouring in upon us for a series of years, and the supply is likely to increase rather than to diminish for a number of years. One might think that the quantity brought into the market would rapidly accumulate and thus depreciate its value, but the demands increase in the same ratio and until the supply exceeds the requirements of trade in all quarters of the commercial world there will be no perceptible diminution in its value.—How distant that day may be, can be inferred from the fact that while the annual average supply from 1800 to 1848, was less than six millions, the amount since the discoveries of California, exceeds two hundred and thirty millions, (to say nothing of the yield from Australia,) without in the least effecting the standard value in this country or in Europe.

The season is now most delightful, and it will continue so until the last of next month. This is to us the most agreeable portion of the year, and we often wish that those who hurry away on the approach of the first storm in September could pass a week or two with us at this time, for we feel assured they would much prefer it to the climate in July and August. Those who occupy the cottages understand this, and many of them remain as long as the sun shines warm and the sky is free from storm clouds.

The Fall is to many, a painful season, for they view it as the emblem of the destruction and end that awaits each in turn; but the same spirit may find a source of discontent in all things earthly, and lose all enjoyment in the contemplation of the change that must at some time be effected in their condition. Far better is it to behold in the ripening grain the reward of days of toil under burning suns, and to look forward to a like consummation in another world of all the trials and vexations allotted to us in this. With such a hope the approach of Autumn can bring with it none but pleasing associations, and those who are blessed with health and strength will rejoice at the sight of the yellow corn and well filled barns, even if the ground is carpeted with withered leaves and the winds howl the approach of winter.

On Saturday night last Mr. Stephen Crowell was drowned by being run down by the schooner Roderick Halleck, Capt. Smith, when off Coaster's Harbor Island. Mr. Crowell was in the pilot boat Com. Decatur, and was returning from Fall River. It was blowing heavy at the time and quite dark, and Capt. Smith says he did not see the boat until close upon it. The boat was found on Monday evening, but the remains of the unfortunate pilot have not been recovered.

Yankee ingenuity and Yankee enterprise is supplying the world with all its wants. In markets that were supposed to be crowded with all that could be desired, they enter with their pack, confident of a successful trade before they depart, and even in lands where mechanics are skilful and labor is low, they manage to command and monopolize the market to a considerable extent.—In this way a Yankee set up his shop in Manchester for the sale of pegged boots. At the first sight it appears like taking coals to Newcastle. But no, the pegging of boots is a Yankee notion, and to the surprise of John Bull he is undersold by a foreigner in his own town. John has found that pegged boots are as durable as sewed ones and the Yankee profited by introducing them to him. It was the same with wooden clocks, which are now shipped to the English market, together with broom handles, by the cord.

But the Yankees have not stopped here they have invaded China with there wares, and now in the Celestial Cities one can purchase for six or eight dollars a capital wooden clock, highly ornamented with a looking glass &c., marking the whole twenty-four hours, and with directions on the inside in Chinese characters for the winding, regulating, &c. This was a bold move, but it has proved a profitable one, and the world was probably surprised to learn when the fact was first made known, that in the whole Empire of China there are not more than fifteen hundred clocks made in the course of a year, and that of these scarcely any two agree in time. The Chinese are pleased with the Yankee clocks, and buy them freely if they are assured they are good. To what lengths may not this trade be carried.

On Monday we visited the ship yard of W. H. Crandall & Son, to examine a new centre-board schooner standing on the stocks and now ready to launch. She is ninety-two feet in length, twenty-five feet beam, seven feet eight inches depth of hold, and measures about one hundred and fifty tons. She is owned by Mr. Benjamin Finch, and will be commanded by Capt. Isaac B. Briggs, and is called the Fanny Fern—as pretty a name as was ever coined, and we hope that this well built and well modeled craft will be as successful as Fanny Fern's spicy writings. The Fanny Fern was launched this morning, at 6 o'clock.

In one or two weeks we shall get into our new office, which we are now having prepared for us. Since the publication of our daily we have been very much cramped for room and have often had to do our work over twice for want of sufficient space. This will shortly be remedied.—On Champlin's Wharf we have the two upper stories of a light, airy and convenient building, fitted to receive our presses, &c, and as soon as the plastering is in a fit state we shall remove our office from the building where it has been located for nearly thirty years. The Counting Room will remain as at present, where all orders will be received and all business transacted.

These persons who attended the "Ladies Festival" in February last, will be glad to learn that a similar entertainment is to be given at the Hall of the Atlantic House in the course of a week or ten days. It was universally conceded that the last was one of the pleasantest affairs that ever came off in Newport, and judeging from the extensive arrangements already being made, it is presumed that this will prove equally attractive. The Ladies will doubtless evince their usual liberality, and exhibit an enviable display of Fruit and Flowers, while the Gentlemen will contribute their quota of the more substantial creature comforts. Z.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

A Visit to Europe in 1851, by Prof. Benjamin Silliman; Geo. P. Putnam & Co., New York; C. E. Hammett, Newport. In two volumes we have the journal of the last visit of the venerable Prof. Silliman, of Yale College, embracing all the points visited from the arrival at the dock in Liverpool through England, Wales, France, Italy, Sicily, returning by the way of Venice, Mont Blanc, Geneva and Brussels. The reader will see that the above embraces a wide range of subjects, all of which are treated carefully and the greater part of the work was written at the time and on the spot. The tour was made at a fortunate period. Europe was tranquil, and the peaceful travelers passed from point to point in safety. We have followed the narrative over such portions of the Continent as are familiar to us and can attest its accuracy; scenes that had escaped our memory again appear freshly to us as recently visited, and in more than one instance in turning its pages we have wished for the privilege of retracing our steps. There are a few illustrations in each volume, that forming the frontispiece we recognise as Cole's picture of Ætna, now in New York and belonging to the New York gallery. It is a beautiful scene and probably presents the finest view of Ætna to be obtained at any one point.

The Story of Mont Blanc, by Albert Smith; Geo. P. Putnam & Co. New York, C. E. Hammett, Jr. Newport. The author of this volume is numbered among the very few who have triumphed over the difficulties attending that terrible ascent. He gives in a few introductory remarks an account of his visit to Chamouni when yet a youth, his longings to visit the summit of Mt. Blanc, to be realized in after years. In his narrative we have the early history of Chamouni; then an account of the several visits of Messrs. Pococke & Windham, of the first adventures on Mont Blanc; the success of De Saussure in 1787; the fatal attempt of Dr. Hamel in 1820, closing with a graphic account of the author's success in scaling the Mur de la Cote, and a half hour's rest on the Calotte or cap of Mont Blanc. Many have assayed to climb the frightful precipices, rocks and barriers of ice in the way of ascent to the highest peaks of the Alps, but in nearly every case they have found it beyond their strength and endurance. There is much of interest attached to the descriptions of all who have overcome the dangers of the way, and this will insure a general circulation of the work under notice.

The Exiles, by Talvi; Geo. T. Putnam & Co. New York, C. E. Hammett, Newport. This volume was written for the German reader, and was intended to present to him a picture of American society and institutions, as far as could be and keep up the interest of the tale. The scene opens in Germany, the lovers embark for America, the hero having to leave his Country for political offences, and Clotilde the heroine, makes his lot her lot. On the Coast of Florida, the ship is burnt and each supposes the other lost. After many months they meet, the hero then in prison for meddling with slaves, who makes his escape through her aid. After many trials they are quietly settled on a farm in Vermont, where their peace is suddenly and forever broken by a tragic scene. The tale is beautifully told, the action is bold, natural and in keeping, the characters are well drawn, and if one has but little sympathy for the dreamy philosophy of Hubert, or the wild enthusiasm of Virginia, he can follow the self-sacrificing, ever-loving Clotilde, through all her trials and grieve that love so constant should see its star of hope so early set forever.

Ladies' National Magazine, for October is at hand. It is embellished with the "Unconscious Sleeper" in a very unnatural position, together with Fashion Plates, Architectural designs, patterns &c. The number of contributions for this month is very large, and among them we find well known names in the literary world.

SPECIAL NOTICES

LYON'S KATHAIRON,

For Preserving, Restoring and Beautifying the hair, alleviating Nervous Headache, and curing Eruptive Diseases of the Skin. Its reputation, co-extensive with the civilization of the globe, makes all praise superfluous, all exaggeration impossible; and since its discovery has found no substitute to compete its incontested—its incontestable superiority. Physicians and Chemists,—honorable citizens from all professions of life,—the leading Journals of Europe and America,—Ladies who have used it upon their dressing-tables, and Mothers in their Nurseries,—in fact, its million patrons everywhere, from plebians to kings, pronounce it the most pleasing and effective article either as a Medicinal or Toilet preperation ever produced. Do not fail to give it a trial. Price but 25 cents.

SCROFULA.—Mrs. C.—, says Dr. Tyler, of delicate constitution, when 19 years of age, was afflicted with a cough, and her neck was thickly studded with Scrofulous tumors. Under the influence of a free use of a decoction of Rock Rose, she recovered her health, and has not been afflicted with any such symptoms since. The above is taken from a work published by D. A. Tyler, M. D., of New Haven, Conn., in 1846, and proves the wonderful efficacy of the plant Rock Rose, as a cure for scrofula. See ...tisement of Myers' Rock Rose, in another column.

...ONING BY POIS...

Thousands of Parents who u... ...e Vermifuge composed of Castor oil, Calomel, &c., are ... not aware, that while they appear to benefit the pa...tient, they are actually laying the foundations for a series of diseases, such as salivation, loss of sight, weakness of limbs, &c.

In another column will be found the advertisement of Hobensack's Medicines, to which we ask the attention of all directly interested in their own as well as their Children's health. In Liver Complaints and all disorders arising from those of a bilious type, should make use of the only genuine medicine, Hobensack's Liver Pills.

☞ "Be not deceived," but ask for Hobensack's Worm Syrup and Liver Pills, and observe that each has the signature of the Proprietor, J. N. HOBENSACK, as none else are genuine.

To the Herb Rosemary.—Henry Kirke addressing this herb thus writes—

"Sweet-scented flower, who'rt wont to bloom
In January's frost severe,
And o'er the wintry desert drear,
To waft thy sweet perfume—
Come! thou shalt be my minstrel now."

Doubtless the poet was aware of the many virtues of this herb, but the discovery of one rare quality was reserved for later times. Combined with Castor Oil, it forms the best Hair ...ash ever known; and Mr. Spalding has so chemically united them, that the mixture is unparalleled for elegance and utility. Try it.

Sold by Hazard & Caswell, R. J. Taylor, and by dealers generally.

☞ Ladies waited upon by Mrs. Caroline D. Foster at the above place.

The following certificates from Dr. John C. Warren of Boston, was given 16 years since, but will last forever:

Boston, January 7, 1835.

Having had occasion to observe that some persons afflicted with Hernia, have suffered much from the want of a skilful workman in accommodating Trusses to the peculiarities of their cases, I have taken pains to inform myself of the competency of Mr. J. F. Foster, to supply the deficiency occasioned by the death of Mr. Beath.—After some months of observation of his work, I am well satisfied that Mr. Foster is well acquainted with the manufacture of these instruments, and ingenious in accommodating them to the variety of cases which occur. I feel called upon to recommend him to my professional brethren, and to the public as a person well fitted to supply their wants in regard to those important articles.

JOHN. C. WARREN, M. D. Boston.

Certificate.—The following certificate is from Professor Stuart, of Andover Theological Seminary:

The undersigned having occasion to employ Mr. J. Frederick Foster, of Boston, in making and fitting Trusses for the relief of Hernia, takes great pleasure in recommending him to the favorable notice, of such persons as may be afflicted with that and similar complaints. Mr. Foster's success in the manufacture and adapting them to the body, giving ease and comfort to the wearer, surpass (as far as our experience goes,) any other manufacture of the article.

The numerous testimonials which he has received, together with the recommendations of that eminent Surgeon, Dr J C Warren, as a sufficient guaranty for all who may favor Mr F, that his instrument will give enire satisfaction, and he will satisfy all reasonable demands for an equitable compensation. M STUART.

MESSRS. BLISS & STANHOPE,

Gents:—

Your large Hotel Range—"Jenny Lind"—is everything that could reasonably be desired in the way of a Cooking Range. I have given it a fair trial the past season. We can roast any amount almost, of meat, or bake any quantity of Bread, and Pastry, and it does both in the very best manner and shortest time, and the amount of fuel is small compared to the amount of work it does. It is of capacity to cook for two hundred persons, it is very strong and heavy, has not broken at all, and I would recommend it to any who should want such an article.

Respectfully yours,
PHILIP RIDER,
Proprietor of the Aquidneck House.

STATE OF RHODE ISLAND AND PROVIDENCE PLANTATIONS.

Newport, s. c.

Whereas, at the Ward Meetings, holden on the 14th of September inst., there was no election of a Mayor, for the City of Newport. The Board of Aldermen on the 15th of September, inst., ordered that a warrant issue for ward meetings to be holden in this city on Tuesday the 4th day of October next, AD 1853, to be opened at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and to close at 8 o'clock in the evening of said day, for the purpose of electing a Mayor for said city, to fill the vacancy in that office, for the ensuing year.

Notice is therefore hereby given to the qualified electors of this City for general officers, to assemble in their several wards, on said Tuesday the 4th day of October next at 2 o'clock P. M., at the following places.

FIRST WARD.—At the room formerly a SCHOOL ROOM. East of the dwelling of GEORGE W. NORMAN, South side of Bridge street.

SECOND WARD.—At the STATE HOUSE.
THIRD WARD.—At the CITY HALL.
FOURTH WARD,—At the CUSTOM HOUSE, lower floor.
FIFTH WARD.—At the MACHINE SHOP, so called, West side of Thames street.

For the purpose of giving in their ballots for a Mayor for this City, to fill the vacancy aforesaid, for the ensuing year.

Said meetings will open at 2 o'clock. P. M. and close at 8 o'clock P. M.

Witness my hand this 17th day of September, AD. 1853. By order
B. B. HOWLAND,
City Clerk.

PROCLAMATION,

TO THE INVALIDS OF NEWPORT.

PULVERMACHER'S

HYDRO ELECTRO VOLTAIRE CHAINS—are for the first time presented to the sensible people of Newport and vicinity as being an entirely new, novel and effectual mode of applying Electro Magnetism, in the instant relief and permanent cure of all nervous diseases.

If the people of Newport are pleased with a long extravagant advertisement, we are disposed to displease for once, and give them a very brief notice of their HISTORY.

The Electric Chains were first discovered and used in France, about three years since, when the frequent and wonderful cures they produce of nervous diseases soon attracted the attention of the first Medical men in Paris, who still further tested their power and readily pronounced, that they certainly did instantly relieve pain, more quickly than could be done by Opium or any of its compounds. Within the last two years, they have been introduced into England, Germany, Austria, Prussia, Belgium and secured and patented in those Countries, and one year since introduced into the United States, and are now on exhibition in the Crystal Palace—they are highly recommended by Professor Mott—Van Buren—Post—Carnochan, of New York, and are also used in every Hospital in that city.

1000 DOLLARS

will be given to any person, who will produce so many well authenticated certificates of cure of the following diseases as has been performed within the last year by the use of the Electric Chains.

Nervous Headache,	Painful and swelled joints,
Rheumatism,	Palpitation of the heart,
Neuralgia of the face,	Dyspepsia Flatulence,
Deafness, Blindness,	Pains in the Back,
St. Vitus Dance,	General Debility,
Hysterics,	Nervous Cough, Asthma,

AND ALL NERVOUS DISEASES.

They are not recommended to cure all diseases but those above mentioned it is claimed and can be satisfactorily proved that no miserable, disgusting, filthy bottled nostrum, has ever performed one single cure where the Chains have seldom if ever failed to produce instant relief, if not a permanent cure.

In Female diseases more than one hundred cases have been cured within the last six months, that had previously baffled every other mode of treatment. Do not fail to call upon Mr. R. J. Taylor, and obtain a pamphlet containing a list of many cases cured, also giving an account of the mode of use.

The Chains are sold in all the principle cities in the United States and in foreign countries.

R. J. TAYLOR, Agent for Newport and vicinity.

SAMUEL YOUNG, PROPRIETOR.

Fitted and Furnished in Neat and Fashionable Style FOR LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

MR. YOUNG would return his thanks to his many friends and a kind public, for the liberal patronage heretofore bestowed upon him and would solicit a continuance of the same in the Bathing department, which he flatters himself will be conducted in a proper and satisfactory manner. Everything in connection with this branch is of the first order—the Salt Water is drawn pure from the Ocean, by means of pipes fitted for that purpose,—while the Fresh Water sparkles and boils, pure and spontaneously, from its own rock-bedded spring.

N. B.—S. Y. is perfectly familiar with the Bathing Business, having previously conducted an establishment of this kind.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

CURE OF A DISORDERED LIVER AND BAD DIGESTION.

Copy of a Letter from Mr. R. W. Kirkus, Chemist, 7 Prescot-street, Liverpool, dated 6th June, 1851.

To Professor Holloway,

Sir,—Your Pills and Ointment have stood the highest on our sale list of Proprietary Medicines for some years. A customer, to whom I can refer for any enquiries, desires me to let you know the particulars of her case. She had been troubled for years with a disordered liver, and bad digestion. On the last occasion, however, the virulence of the attack was so alarming, and the inflammation set in so severely, that doubts were entertained of her not being able to bear up under it; fortunately she was induced to try your Pills, and she informs me that after the first, and each succeeding dose, she had great relief. She continued to take them, and although she used only three Boxes, she is now in the enjoyment of perfect health. I could have sent you many more cases, but the above, from the severity of the attack, and the speedy cure, I think speaks much in favor of your astonishing Pills. (Signed) R. W. KIRKUS.

AN EXTRAORDINARY CURE OF RHEUMATIC FEVER, IN VAN DIEMAN'S LAND.

Copy of a Letter inserted in the Hobart Town Courier, of the 1st March, 1851, by Major J. Walch.

Margaret M'Connigan, nineteen years of age, residing at New Town, had been suffering from a violent rheumatic fever for upwards of two months, which had entirely deprived her of the use of her limbs; during this period she was under the care of the most eminent medical men in Hobart Town, and by them her case was considered hopeless. A friend prevailed upon her to try Holloway's celebrated Pills, which she consented to do, and in an incredible short space of time they effected a perfect cure.

CURE OF A PAIN AND TIGHTNESS IN THE CHEST AND STOMACH OF A PERSON 84 YEARS OF AGE.

From Messrs. Thew & Son, Proprietors of the Lynn Advertiser, who can vouch for the following statement.—August 2d, 1851.

To Professor Holloway,

Sir,—I desire to bear testimony to the good effects of Holloway's Pills. For some years I suffered severely from a pain and tightness in the stomach, which was also accompanied by a shortness of breath, that prevented me from walking about. I am 84 years of age, and notwithstanding my advanced state of life, these Pills have so relieved me, that I am desirous that others should be made acquainted with their virtues. I am now rendered, by their means, comparatively active, and can take exercise without inconvenience or pain, which I could not do before. (Signed) HENRY COE, North-street, Lynn, Norfolk.

These celebrated Pills are wonderfully efficacious in the following complaints:

Ague	Female Irregularities	Retention of Urine
Asthma	Fevers of all kinds	Scrofula or King's Evil
Bilious Complaints	Fits	Sore Throats
Blotches on the Skin	Gout	Stone and Gravel
Bowel Complaints	Head-ache	Secondary Symptoms
Colics	Indigestion	Tic Douloureux
Constipation of the Bowels	Inflammation	Tumors
Consumption	Jaundice	Ulcers
Debility	Liver Complaints	Venereal Affections
Dropsy	Lumbago	Worms of all kinds
Dysentery	Piles	Weakness from whatever cause,
Erysipelas	Rheumatism	&c., &c.

Sold at the Establishment of Professor Holloway, 244 Strand (near Temple Bar, London), and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicines throughout the British Empire, and of those of the United States, in Boxes at 37½c., 87c., and $1 50c. each. Wholesale by the principal Drug houses in the Union, and by Messrs. A. B. & D. Sands, New York.

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each Box.

TIMELY HINTS TO ALL.

How many have lost a father, a mother, a sister, a brother, or an innocent little prattling child—and have not even the shadow of a resemblance to look upon. After the separation some little toy or a trifling article of apparel, often is kept for years, and cherished as a token of remembrance how much more valuable would be one of Williams' perfect Daguerreotype Minatures of the "loved and lost";

There is scarcely any one who does not take pleasure in gazing on the features of a friend, and when that friend has been removed by death, we often hear the exclamation, uttered with an expression of deep regret, "Oh, what would I not give for such a picture of my friend!"

Reader, perhaps you cannot do a better thing now, while your mind is upon the subject, than take an hour or two, and go by yourself, or with your family, or your friends, and visit the only artist in our town; and if not now, you may at some future period have reason to feel grateful for these "gentle hints" from

J. A. WILLIAMS,

Oct. 26, 1850. Daguerreotype Artist.

Newport Water Cure.

Rose—Mary.

Take the sweetest of names and the fairest flowers,
Combine them, and lo, what a treasure is ours!
For blooming in winter, when earth is all dreary
We hail with delight the green fragrant Rose-Mary.
Its dark shaded leaves with an essence is filled,
Which, when from its secret recesses distilled,
And combined with an Oil of a quality rare
(As by Spalding,) is just the right thing for the hair.
And Spalding esteems it no more than a duty,
This offering to lay on the toilet of Beauty,
For baldness and Time's bad effects all may foil
By the use of his Castor and Rosemary Oil.

The Metropolitan Range.

THE SUBSCRIBER has secured the Agency for the sale of this favorite range. It will do twice the amount of cooking of any range in use and in a superior manner. It requires but half the amount of fuel and the cost of setting them is very trifling, in comparison with other ranges. The boiler holes are so ingeniously arranged that fire burns equally under them all. One of the greatest advantages of this range is the construction of the oven which is lined with fire brick, thus retaining the heat and giving all the advantages of a brick oven. The range has met with a ready sale, gives the utmost satisfaction to all who have tried it, and is fast superseding all others in use. The subscriber invites all those in want of a range to call at his Store, No. 120 Thames Street, and examine the Metropolitan Range, before purchasing elsewhere.

GORTON ANDERSON'S AMBROSIAL INVIGORATOR, FOR THE HAIR.

FOR PRESERVING, RESTORING AND beautifying the Hair; a safe and never failing remedy for all diseases of the scalp; a certain exterminator of dandruff and scurf, and a preventive of baldness, grey hair, &c.

The Inventor and Proprietor of this valuable article has for years been engaged in the business of Hair-cutting and dressing, and has had the most ample opportunities of becoming thoroughly acquainted with all that relates to it. His attention has been constantly drawn to the study of the condition of the Hair under the varying circumstances produced by climate, age, disease, &c.; and he has in his private practice, for some years, used the invaluable preparation which, at the request of many of his most highly influential and respectable patrons, he now offers to the public. Indeed, the numerous applications from strangers at a distance, as well as in the neighborhood, have compelled him to prepare large quantities of the and it is now offered to the world, with the assurance that both for gentlemen and ladies it is unequalled, for utility and economy by any Hair preparation in the universe.

Ladies will find the Ambrosial a great addition to the Toilet, both on account of its delicate and agreeable perfume, and the great facilities it affords in dressing the Hair, which when moist with the Ambrosial, can be dressed in any required form, so as to preserve its place. When used on the heads of children, it lays the foundation for a good head of Hair.

The Ambrosial Invigorator will keep the Hair moist longer than any oil, and is warranted to give universal satisfaction in all cases, when properly used.

For sale wholesale and retail, by the proprietor, 103 Thames street, Newport, R. I. A liberal discount will be made to those who purchase it for sale. Single bottles, 25 cents, accompanied with full directions for its use, together with a treatise on the formation, character and diseases of the Hair.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE.

PROSPECTUS.

This work is conducted in the spirit of Littell's Museum of Foreign Literature, (which was favorably received by the public for twenty years,) but as it is twice as large, and appears so often, we not only give spirit and freshness to it by many things which were excluded by a month's delay, but while thus extending our scope and gathering a greater and more attractive variety, are able so to increase the solid and substantial part of our literary, historical and political harvest, as fully to satisfy the wants of the American reader.

The elaborate and stately Essays of Edinburgh, Quarterly, and other Reviews; and Blackwood's noble criticisms on Poetry, his keen political Commentaries, highly wrought Tales, and vivid descriptions of rural and mountain Scenery; and the contributions to Literature, History and Common Life, by the sagacious Spectator, the sparkling Examiner, the judicious Athenæum, the busy and industrious Literary Gazette, the sensible and comprehensive Britannia, the sober and respectable Christian Observer; these are intermixed with the Military and Naval reminiscences of the United Service, and with the best articles of the Dublin University, New Monthly, Frazer's, Tait's, Ainsworth's, Hood's, and Sporting Magazines, and of Chamber's admirable Journal. We do not consider it beneath our dignity to borrow wit and wisdom from Punch; and, when we think it good enough, make use of the thunder of The Times. We shall increase our variety by importations from the continent of Europe, and from the new growth of the British colinies.

The steamship has brought Europe, Asia and Africa, into our neighborhood; and will greatly multiply our connections, as merchants, Travellers and Politicians, with all parts of the world; so that much more than ever it now becomes every intelligent American to be informed of the condition and changes of foreign countries. And this not only because of their nearer connection with ourselves, but because the nations seem to be hastening, through a rapid process of change, to some new state of things, which the merely political prophet cannot compute.

Geographical Discoveries, the progress of Colonization, (which is extending over the whole world,) and Voyages and Travels, will be favorite matter for our selections; and, in general, we shall systematically and very fully acquaint our readers with the great department of Foreign affairs, without entirely neglecting our own.

While we aspire to make the Living Age desirable to all who wish to keep themselves informed of the rapid progress of the movement—to Statesmen, Divines, Lawyers and Physicians—to men of business and men of leisure—it is still a stronger object to make it attractive and useful to their Wives and Children. We believe that we can thus do some good in our day and generation; and hope to make the work indispensable in every well-informed family. We say indispensable, because in this day of cheap literature it is not possible to guard against the influx of what is bad in taste and vicious in morals, in any other way than by furnishing a sufficient supply of a healthy character. The mental and moral appetite must be gratified.

We hope that, by "winnowing the wheat from the chaff," by providing abundantly for the imagination, and by a large collection of Biography, Voyages, Travels, History, and more solid matter, we may produce a work which shall be popular, while at the same time it will aspire to raise the standard of Public taste.

Extract of a letter from Judge Story:—

I have read the prospectus with great pleasure; and entirely approve the plan. If it can only obtain the public patronage long enough and large enough, and securely enough, to attain its true ends, it will contribute in an eminent degree to give a healthy tone, not only to our literature, but to public opinion. It will enable us to possess, in a moderate compass, a select library of the best productions of the age.—It will do more. It will redeem our periodical literature from the reproach of being devoted to light and superficial reading, to transitory speculations, to sickly and ephemeral sentimentalities, and false and extravagant sketches of life and character. JOSEPH STORY.

The Living Age is published every Saturday, by E. Littell & Co., corner of Tremont and Bromfield sts., Boston; Price 12½ cents a number, or six dollars a year in advance. Postage free. Remittances for any period will be thankfully received and promptly attended to. 1y

THE WONDER OF THE AGE.

FOR the cure of Salt Rheum Erysipelas, Chilblains, Chapped or Cracked Hands, Burns, & Scalds, Cuts, Wounds of any kind; Piles; Inflammation of the Breast; Bites of Insects; Old Sores; all kinds of Breaking out and Sores on children; Sore Lips, Pimples on the face, and all diseases of the Skin.

☞ For particulars see small bills accompanying each Box.

☞ 20,000 boxes sold in New England the last year, and gave universal satisfaction.

The great secret of the popularity of this Ointment lies in the fact that it accomplishes all it is recommended to do; and that I do not recommend it to cure anything but what from the nature of the ingredients, it is an absolute specific, while other preparations of the kind are recommended to cure every disease that human flesh is heir to, from Consumption down to the bite of a flea, when, in fact, all the medical properties they contain are in the hand-bills, and the thousands of fictitious certificates published in their praise.

I invite those troubled with the above complaints, (particularly Salt Rheum,) to take a box and try it,—if you are not fully satisfied, return it and take back your money.

N. B.—I have hundreds of testimonials I can show any one who feels disposed to call on me and satisfy himself of the virtues of the Ointment.

CHIMNEY PIECES AND PIER SLABS,

Manufactured of Stone by the

PENRHYN MARBLE COMANY

THESE CHIMNEY PIECES AND PIER SLABS are new and beautiful articles, superior in appearance and finish to any other in the market; can be made of any dimensions, and are sold at low prices. They are very highly polished, retain their beauty much longer than the common marble, and are not injured or defaced by coal gas, smoke or acids. Since their introduction, a large number have been sold, and have given general satisfaction. The labor required to keep them in good order is very slight, as they do not become discolored like other kinds of marble. The stone used in their manufacture is imported from England, where it is very extensively used for architectural purposes, having been known to last for centuries. It does not partake of the brittleness of common marble being tough, strong and durable, and thus perfectly well adapted for chimney pieces, &c. This stone by a peculiar process, is beautifully enamelled, in imitation of the finest Egyptian—the enamel being so firmly incorporated with the stone that it becomes permanent.

The unequalled polish and appearance of these Chimney Pieces and the confidence with which they have thus far been used, give the fairest evidence that the Penrhyn Marble, by its many advantages, will at no distant day supersede the use of the Egyptian.

Pier Slabs and Shelves for Parlors, Chamber &c., together with bronzed and other kinds of Brackets, of various patterns, furnished to order Architects, Builders, and all others are invited to examine them.

Samples may be seen at the store of BLISS & STANHOPE, Agents,

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

DOCTOR ALFRED G. HALL.

AUTHOR of the New Theory of cure by the Nutritive Principle, in Physiology and Medicine, sustaining the laws of life and removing the cause of disease, confirmed as a NATURAL SCIENCE by the Nutritive Process; expelling dead and depositing living matter at the same time in the Body, increasing its weight and strength while under treatment, being the great discovery of the constitutional power resisting disease; ample proof can be given in the person of any invalid.

Dr. H. receives visits, makes examinations, ascertains the cause of disease, describes the precise condition of the patient, furnishes prescriptions, medicines and recipes for his Nutritive Fluids and cordials.

Three months attention and treatment is requisite in all cases, with printed instructions for diet and washing, and the use of the Alkaline Girdle for the spine and kidneys—a restorative action is produced in all parts of the system immediately by the natural laws sustained by nutrition.

He is the inventor and sole proprietor of 12 nutritive fluids; they can be made by any family—are adapted to the several temperaments and to every form of disease. His works "Views of the New Theory, &c," "Womanhood," and the "Mother's Own Book," are furnished to invalids under his supervision. It is now before Congress.

Doctor Alfred G. Hall may be consulted by letter or in person, at his Rooms, No. 15 Winter street, Boston, from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M. ☞ Medicines, &c. forwarded by Express to any part.

$500 CHALLENGE.

Whatever concerns the health and happiness of the people is at all times of the most valuable importance. I take it for granted that every person will do all in their power to save the lives of their children, and that every person will endeavor to promote their own health at all sacrifices. I feel it my duty to solemnly assure you that WORMS, according to the opinion of the most celebrated Physicians, are the primary causes of a large majority of diseases to which children and adults are liable. If you have an appetite continually changeable from one kind of food to another, Bad Breath, Pain in the stomach, Picking at the Nose, Hardness and fullness of the Belly, Dry Cough, Slow Fever, pulse irregular—remember that all these denote WORMS, and you should at once apply the remedy—

HOBENSACK'S WORM SYRUP.

An article founded upon Scientific Principles, compounded with purely Vegetable substances, being perfectly safe when taken, and can be given to the most tender infant with decided beneficial effect, where Bowel Complaints and Diarrhœa have made them weak and debilitated, the Tonic properties of my Worm Syrup are such, that it stands without an equal in the catalogue of medicines, in giving tone and strength to the Stomach, which makes it an Infallible remedy for those afflicted with Dyspepsia, the astonishing cures performed by this Syrup after Physicians have failed is the best evidence of its superior efficacy over all others.

THE TAPE WORM.

This is the most difficult Worm to destroy of all that infest the human system, it grows to an almost indefinite length, becoming so coiled and fastened in the intestines and stomach, effecting the health so sadly as to cause St. Vitus Dance, Fits, &c., that those afflicted seldom if ever suspect that it is Tape Worm hastening them to an early grave. In order to destroy this Worm, a very energetic treatment must be pursued, it would therefore be proper to take 6 or 8 of my Liver Pills, so as to remove all obstructions, that the Worm Syrup may act direct upon the Worm, which must be taken in doses of two table-spoonfuls three times a day. These directions followed have never been known to fail in curing the most obstinate case of TAPE WORMS.

READ THE FOLLOWING!

And you cannot be indifferent to this appeal. Humanity calls upon you to do your duty. It is only one out of the many thousand who has seen its wonderful effects.

Dr. J. N. HOBENSACK—Sir:—Gratitude to you, the inventor of a highly valuable medicine, prompts this humble testimony in its favor, as being a safe, gentle, yet powerfully effectual remedy for Worms. Having had much experience in knowing the effects of various preparations, my wife, who was well skilled in ministering to children in distress, pronounced it the best she had ever used, and would use no other while yours could be had.

A daughter of ours became seriously diseased. Her symptoms were alarming, but her mother at once sought for a remedy for Worms. Having obtained yours, by the time she had taken half a bottle, O! Sir, the joy it gave an affectionate mother, to see the improvement in her child, she being about five or six years old. She passed an immense quantity of Worms, her sickly countenance now brightened, her spirits returned, and in a short time a lovely child threatened with decline and death, now gave promise of health. Thanks to a kind Providence, whose blessing attending your Syrup, restored the child. With confidence I recommend it to all parents whose children are suffering with Worms.

JAS. B. BOWEN, Minister of the Gospel, Late Pastor of the Southampton Baptist Church.

☞ CAUTION!—Remember, then, Parents and all others, that HOBENSACK'S WORM SYRUP is the only Medicine in use that will eradicate Worms, with certainty, and will not disagree with the most delicate Stomach. Be careful you get the genuine article, and see that the signature, "J. N. HOBENSACK," is on every bottle.

HOBENSACK'S LIVER PILLS

No part of the system is more liable to disease than the LIVER, it serving as a filterer to purify the blood, or giving the proper secretion to the bile, so that any wrong action of the Liver effects the other important parts of the system, and results variously in Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, &c. We should, therefore watch every symptom that might indicate a wrong action of the Liver. These Pills being composed of ROOTS and PLANTS furnished by nature to heal the sick; namely, 1st, an EXPECTORANT, which augments the secretion from the Pulmonary mucus membrane, or promotes the discharge of secreted matter. 2d, an ALTERATIVE, which changes in some inexplicable and insensible manner the certain morbid action of the system. 3d, a TONIC, which gives tone and strength to the nervous system, renewing health and vigor to all parts of the body. 4th, a CATHARTIC, which acts in perfect harmony with the other ingredients, and operating on the Bowels, and expelling the whole mass of corrupt and vitiated matter and purifying the Blood, which destroys disease and restores health.

TO FEMALES.

You will find these Pills an invaluable medicine in many complaints to which you are subject. In obstruction either total or partial, they have been found of inestimable benefit, restoring their functional arrangements to a healthy action, purifying the blood and other fluids so effectually to put to flight all complaints which may arise from female irregularities, as headache, giddiness, dimness of sight, pain in the side, back, &c., and offered to the public as the best Pills for all diseases, upon the following

MEDICAL EVIDENCE.

We, the undersigned Physicians, having had the receipt of their manufacture submitted to us for inspection, say, that the ingredients of which they are composed makes them the best Pill in use for all diseases of the Liver, Impurities of the Blood, &c. We say this not only from our own judgment, but also from that of the best medical authority in the United States. All diseases requiring the use of an ALTERATIVE DIAPHORETIC and PURGATIVE MEDICINE, that came under our notice, has been treated with the above Pills with the most satisfactory success.
